Circus Notes.

Sells Bro. have 51 cages.

Circus business is very dull in Mexico.

Harry Long is the fly man with Sells Bros.

Sells Bros. Circus is doing a fine business.

Charlie Day still remains a guest of Danger.

The big shows are not coining money just now.

Mildred Gardner, in her manege act, has no equal.

Budd Gorman is Jimmy Robinson's brother-in-law.

Whiting and Ryder only work the bars in a circus ring.

Business is reported big with Burr Robbin's Circus.

Adelaide Cordona is the Mary Anderson of the arena.

Jimmy Robinson is 22 years old, when on his favorite steed.

Mons. Josephs and wife have left the great Nickel Plate Show.

Like most learned people, the Leslie Bros. earn a living with their heads.

Johnny Purvis and his trained donkeys make the people laugh in their sleep.

The Purvis Sisters are two of the heaviest and best formed ladies ever on the wire.

Master Hensel, the lightning zouave drill artist, will accept Major Burke's challenge for $500.

The Orrin Brothers are in the States looking for material for their next season's show in Mexico.

Charley Seeley and Ed. Nealy often use the old saying, "What fools we mortals be," during the circus season.

The wild animals connected with Sells Bros.' circus consume 100,000 pounds of raw meat each tenting season.

The Three Russian athletes work from the bottom round of the ladder up to the top more rapidly than does the actor.

The Josephs want performers and curiosities for a tent show they intend to start. Address as per advertisement.

Mill's Pauline Lee is the prettiest and best little equestrienne juggler, that has ever appeared before a Chicago audience.

Abelardo Lowande sailed from Cuba for Mexico during the early part of this week. He will remain there two weeks.

Frank H. Gardner, the famous leaper, stays in the air long enough for Kittleman, the sprint runner, to cover 100 yards.

Signor Don Jeromino Bell, the noted Spanish hurdle rider, captures the male portion of the circus patrons by a large majority, while the ladies jump, scream a little, and wish he was for sale.

Pete Sells, "we call him Pete because we go into the show for nothing," is negotiating with his agents in India for a pair of Bengal tigers broken to saddle which will be used next season in a wired inclosure for hurdle purposes. Two native jockey boys will accompany the handsome brutes to America.

Whiting Allen, the newspaper representative of Sells Bros.' circus, is an old Chicago boy, and a newspaper man at that. The grace and style Mr. Allen assumes when passing over a $90 contract would put to shame Osmond Tearle when offering his services to the Russian Princess while in exile in the play "Moths."

The well-known Sells Bros. Circus exhibited here on the 19th, afternoon and evening. The tents were packed at both performances. The parade was the great feature of the day, and a finer street parade has never been seen here. The circus was the best that has been witnessed in years.—Milwaukee cor.

The third wedding this season has taken place with the Frank A. Robbins Circus, the last one being that of Thos. Bowen, treasurer, and Miss Ada Kelley, of Newport, N. Y. They were the recipients of handsome presents from Frank A. Robbins, E. D. Colvin and Frank Charvat.

On July 17, at Utica, N. Y., during the performance of Barnum's Circus, Thos. Richard, one of the riders in the hippodrome races was thrown from his horse and dragged half way around the track with one foot hanging in the stirrup. He is injured internally, and our latest advices say he is not expected to live.
